

BUCKS in ACTION

"This unit emphasized the element of art called value. In this lesson, art students used charcoal to create a diverse range of values in their art stemming from true black to light gray. Students utilized vine charcoal, brick charcoal, erasers, and blending tortillions. Year two students also implemented several shading techniques in addition to toning the paper and subtractive drawing. All students were required to learn about masking off a border and creating a hinged cover. Their hard work and attention to detail sure paid off because everyone's work came out fantastic!"
